AIDS, Today, Tomorrow: An Introduction To The HIV Epidemic In America

Robert Searles Walker

the New. AIDS epidemic. We, as young people today, hear the word AIDS pretty often. global prevention goals to reduce by 2005 HIV prevalence among young men and women aged 15–24 in Introduction Latin America & Caribbean. 560,000.
AIDS today, tomorrow by Robert Searles Walker, 1991, Humanities Press International edition, in English. AIDS—today, tomorrow. An introduction to the HIV epidemic in America. by Robert Searles Walker. Published 1991 by Humanities Press International in Atlantic Highlands, N.J. Written in English. Today’s HIV/AIDS Epidemic. CDC estimates that roughly 1.2 million people in the United States are living with HIV and nearly one in eight of those are not aware that they are infected. Prevention efforts have led to encouraging declines in new diagnoses among some populations including African American women, people who inject drugs and heterosexuals and a stabilization in new diagnoses among gay and bisexual men, including black men. However, as many as 50,000 people still become newly infected each year. New infections and overall burden: Since the height of the epidemic in the mid-1980s, the annual number of new HIV infections in the United States has been reduced by more than two-thirds, from roughly 130,000 in 1985 to approximately 50,000 in 2010.